

RESIDENT PHYSICIAN OF THE MONTH

APRIL

A colleague shared this about Dr. DiGravio:

During my interactions with him, Dr. DiGravio took numerous opportunities as teaching time. He spends time teaching resident physicians common approaches to IM topics. He also provided presentations during morning reports which were well prepared and very easy to follow. I think he puts in the time to help and is genuinely interested in helping junior resident physicians feel comfortable on the ward.

Dr. Eric DiGravio Internal Medicine University of Calgary

I am from Guelph, Ontario and completed my undergraduate and medical degree at the University of Western Ontario before coming out to Calgary to complete my Internal Medicine residency training. Since moving here in 2021, I have absolutely loved the city, the program, and my amazing co-resident physicians who have helped make me feel so welcomed here. I plan to apply to General Internal Medicine in the upcoming subspecialty match and am thankful for how well-prepared this program has made me feel.

At work, mentorship and teaching are important to me and I am always looking for ways to get involved with teaching at the medical school and helping out the junior resident physicians. Outside of medicine, I enjoy cooking, history and watching the Raptors (tough season but there's always next year right?).

On the best of nights, I get to combine all three with a nice homemade pizza while watching a game, followed by a documentary on whatever history topic happens to be of interest to me at the time. I have even recently gotten involved with the Military Museums here in Calgary and am very excited to help out with their upcoming exhibit on Canadian medical history!
